Description

Given the fact that you have built a very great web framework and that you seem to have mobile application development experience (by your emweb.be web site). Have you ever considered (or still considering) developing a mobile application framework ?

Hey,

Yes, we will probably do so if ever there is a project which can drive this effort. We already did some experiments in the past. We would probably use the same approach as we did with bootstrap, e.g. adapting the HTML/CSS of ratchet <http://goratchet.com/> without its JS components.

Regards,
